MISTRESS AND MAID.

Stumbling Blocks in the Way of Workingwomen.

Rev. Herbert Brooks Views on this Interesting Subject.

She Makes a Spirited Defence of the Mistress.

Procuring Country Situations for City Women.

WRITTEN FOR THE GAZETTE.
Copyrighted 1887.

Lately I digressed a little from my ...ords to speak a word or two in behalf of ...women who help women in the household ...

Some of the answers I received to my ... Clergyman's wife writes to the point ... the South's Cry is a great one says that ... common sense why girls refuse to enter ... upon household service as heretofore ... exhausts the patience of all those think... Men of their own class will not marry ... They are called "parlor snakes" ... they lose caste. And so it was in the ... beginning in Europe, and I care not if ... at least so long as the present scarcity of ... lasts, lasts forever. I've a right to ... please men.

This is indeed hard to understand. ... Simply for his own comfort one would ... suppose that such a very simple man... would be glad of the chance to have the ... house cared and kitchen presided over ... experienced maids and not into some other ... family than his own. How would they ... be hope that these death dealing experi... ments would bring him to his senses ... a toothsome and cheerful table. There ... is nothing in human history however ... to show that men are not capable of ... as great folly as we ... and therefore ... they may be capable of this. It remains ... then for the apostles of humanity to ... dote those men from the error of their ... thoughts, and if they cannot, to convert ... women from the error of supposing that ... there is no one else for them to marry ... except these foolish men.

Lack of consideration on the part of ... employers seems to be a huge bugbear ... in the way of women workers. Mrs. ... Helen Campbell gives us some harrow... ing illustrations of the selfishness and ... heartl... of households. I cannot ... refute the as... ... very ... ... my conversation. But I may speak of ... what I know. I have learned families ... of whose ... from the quiet ... house which kept only one maid of all ... work to the establishment which was ... conducted by twenty, and I never saw ... one, not one, where the women of the ... house were not wearing. I never saw ... while the mistress did not consider her servants as human beings and ... did not plan for their wants as their ... comfort their welfare and generally for ... their earnings' sake. The mistress taken ... more apparent thought for the general ...

WELFARE OF THE SERVANT

... than the servant takes for that of the ... mistress. This is as it should be because ... in most cases the mistress is not only in ... the superior position but is the superior ... person and therefore, naturally has a ... wider range of vision and of duty.

When these charges against the house... mother descend from generals to particu... ulars, their unreasonableness is more ... palpable. One girl cites as a proof of ... the unbearableness of the situation, that ... she helps the husband and sons to their ... hats and overcoats and they pay no more ... heed to her than if she were a stick or a ... stone. When Dr. Hall's parishioners ... are invited, send that girl into the ... country for a position, they ought to give ... her a sound, preliminary lecture and ... then keep her at home under their own ... eyes. Say is not the kind the country ... villages want though, perhaps, as pure ... health with a great deal of vigorous ... out door exposition at the city end of the ... line than they will take her. There are, ... indeed, a few men whose beards to the ... inside as if they were duchesses, with ... the result of an enthusiasm on the part ... of the maids as innocent as it is conse... quent. But this is a condition that cannot ... be even feared and should not be pierced, ... and of course women cannot be con... tent with the masculine respect that is ... conveyed by non consciousness, the only ... safe path is one that leads the other way.

Another complains that she has no ... place to receive her friends except in the ... kitchen. For the New York mercenary ... mistress I explain cruelly to the woman ... that pays me sending me into the country ... that this in many cases cannot be stopped. ... County houses sympathize deeply ... with the city poor in their wish for a ... parlor but they have none to offer. We ... desire not to deceive. Pity. Let them ... understand perfectly beforehand that ... this is to be permanent in the land. But ... the church committee will do good ... work, ... if they will as ... semble their heads ... in the church ... parlor and preach to them such a gospel ... of cleanliness and order and faithfulness that ... the latter will prove ... that while they ... are at work in the kitchen they ought ... not to receive company and their kitch... en should be so tidy that a shell be... perfectly proper place to receive com... pany in. If Mr Parkhurst or Dr Parkhurst's ... church will ransack the chambers of ... their memory they will recall many a ... kitchen of their youthful experience in ... which their own ... ... neighbors with the utmost cordiality ... dignity and satisfaction. Unless the ... women of New York can conform to this ... state of things the country cannot draw ... them out from under Brooklyn bridge ... and down from their fourteenth story ... rookeries. It is home for the purpose that ... I would aid.

H. W. STEELE
Manager of the GAZETTE.

The Wool Journal is not very much worried by what the president said in regard to the reduction of the duty on wool. It makes the following very sensible remarks on the subject:

Indeed, manufacturers bought more freely last week than for some weeks previous. They talked free wool and lower prices, but [illegible] before more, as their stocks are lower and their wants [illegible] urgent. The less we say about [illegible] the better. We can conceive of no possible tariff legislation by the [illegible] Congress that can further depress the value of American wool this season. Party finality and diverse views outside party lines will be sufficient to defeat all efforts for radical change.

The Denver Republican is very free in reading papers in and out of the party. In doing this however, it shows more zeal than intelligence. It thinks the Chicago Tribune is opposing the party in taking the position it does regarding President Cleveland's message. It also seems to think that the republican party exists for the purpose of upholding protection. Only a few days ago, it asserted as the resolution offered by Senator Chandler, which [illegible] has for its purpose the protection of citizens in their right to vote as they [illegible] and to have that vote counted. It spoke of this as an unimportant issue as [illegible] with protection and insists that side [illegible] should not be introduced. All this shows that the Republican is not very familiar with the history of the party. It is Plaigiete, not republican. The [illegible] party was not organized to aid any of the interests of trade. It took [illegible] the traditions and principles of the whigs on this subject, but the party did not feel called upon to make any [illegible] on that subject during the first years of its existence. The party was organized on purely moral questions and not for commercial [illegible]. The first platform was [illegible] in 1856 when Fremont and Dayton were nominated for the presidential ticket. The platform that year does not even indirectly mention the tariff question. It is mainly devoted to certain declarations regarding slavery and to resolutions favoring a Pacific railroad and a liberal appropriation for internal improvements. The convention of 1864 also fails to make any [illegible] of the tariff question. It is principally devoted to war [illegible] to resolutions in favor of foreign immigration in favor of the completion of the Pacific railroad and in favor of the Monroe doctrine. The national platform for 1868 is devoted quite largely to the question of reconstruction. The only resolution which can have reference to the tariff is the fourth which reads "It is due to the labor of the nation that taxation should be equalized and reduced as rapidly as the national faith will permit." The convention of 1872 was not able to make an issue on this question here the opposition candidate had been for years a leading advocate of protection. The convention of 1876 did not give any prominence to the tariff issue. It has one short plank simply to the effect that the revenue should be largely derived from imp[illegible] and should be adjusted so as to promote the interest of American labor and advance the prosperity of the whole country. This is not a very definite statement of protection. The platform of 1880 almost ignores the whole subject. It simply reaffirms what was stated in 1876. It does not give this prominence enough for a single plank but combines it with a resolution refusing further [illegible] grants to corporations, opposition to polygamy, and a declaration in favor of the protection of American [illegible] against foreign etc. The last platform is that of 1884, in which the party pledged itself to [illegible] the unnecessaries of the tariff and to reduce the surplus. The latter platform [illegible] contains any open and complete resolution in favor of the doctrine of protection but the message of Pres. [illegible] is in no respect unconstitutional [illegible] of this platform [illegible] have noticed in the above [illegible] a good [illegible] idea party in national conventions except that of 1864 which was not called. In several of the platforms the tariff question was so little ignored and [illegible] only one was thought [illegible] only [illegible] was thought worthy [illegible] half of a sentence. When the Republican therefore, [illegible] to say that it [illegible] to not agree with Mr Blaine on the subject of tariff are not good republicans it simply shows that it does not [illegible] with the party record on this issue. The republican who raises that cry [illegible] to know that the surplus [illegible] and that this has been caused by taking the tax off of the necessaries of life in a way that shall not reduce the price of labor or impair any industry is more in accord with the record of the republican party than Mr Blaine or any of his mouth pieces. The interview published with Mr Blaine is a very taking one but will not meet with the approval of the country on deliberation. He does not propose any relief whatever by reducing the taxes on the [illegible] necessaries of life. The only specific proposal he makes is the abolition of the tax on tobacco. The insincerity of his advice must be felt by all who have any familiarity with our tariff laws. Last year, on the three articles of sugar, fruits and nuts we paid be-

[illegible] seven sixty-five and seventy millions [illegible], or over one dollar per capita. It is known that if this tax were taken off it would not in any way affect the price of labor or imperil any American industry with the possible exception of a few sugar planters in Louisiana who would be amply compensated if paid a two million dollar subsidy. But to-day Mr Blaine does not advise the taking off of this unnecessary burden. He does so for fear that if this change is made in the tariff the change may go further.
